East Granite crowd spirited

By Andy Stierling
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Glasnost struck the city last night.

A 65-minute informational meeting about the city's plans to rehabilitate an area of East Granite featured spirited comments — some positive, many negative — from some of the almost 150 people who attended the meeting at Granite City Township Hall.

The city proposes using $218,000 in federal Community Development funds to fix up an area bounded by Madison Avenue from 23rd to 27th streets, and East 23rd from 23rd Street to Nameo Road.

The city hopes to make the rehabilitation of East Granite the first in the eventual rehabilitation of the entire city, said Economic Development Director Alan Ortbals. The area encompasses portions of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Wards.

Mayor Von Dec Cruse had pleaded last week for a heavy turnout at the meeting, but he wasn't present Wednesday because he was out of town for a funeral.

City officials present included Ortbals, 1st Ward Alderman Casmer Skubish, 2nd Ward Aldermen Jim Miller and Virgil Kambarian, and 3rd Ward Aldermen Andy Timko and Paul Fisk.

The meeting was opened by Fisk, acting as mayor pro tem in the absence of Cruse. Fisk introduced Ortbals, who began by saying, "Neighbors are the backbone of our city. Unless we are able to revitalize our neighborhoods, we are not going to make it as a city."

Ortbals summarized the city's plans for East Granite, and he said the City Council began formulating its plans for East Granite last June by earmarking $218,000 of its $418,000 in federal Community Development funds. He said the city also hoped in the future to tap into Madison County's Community Development funds.

He said East Granite was chosen as the first neighborhood to be rehabbed for a number of reasons, including the fact that the neighborhood has only recently started to decline, compared to some other neighborhoods in the city. He said about 40 percent of the approximately 1,000 homes in East Granite are in need of improvement.

The main streets that bound the area, Madison Avenue and East 23rd Street, are used by many people who live outside the city, Ortbals said, and the city's image to outsiders could be improved by their rehabilitation.

Ortbals emphasized that the East Granite plan was "not a finished program" and the city administration wanted "ideas and thoughts" on the plan. He got plenty of those.

First up to offer his comments was Robert Guffey, a resident of the 2600 block of East 23rd Street and a self-described "journeyman carpenter." Guffey described improvements he had made to his own home, but asked, "What about others? You can't force them to do it."

Ortbals responded by saying, "The city will amend its building code to take such things into consideration."

Next up was Mike Stephens of the 2500 block of Edwards Street, who described how neighbors of his had taken advantage of a low-cost Madison County program to insulate their home, then moved out and rented it.

Stephens posed a provocative question, suggesting the East Granite project be subject to similar abuses by opportunists: "Why should we pay money (as taxpayers) so they can make money?"

Ortbals said anyone knowing of such abuses should inform Madison County Community Development officials.

Stephens countered, with some vehemence, by asking what the city was going to do about residents like neighbors of his, who let trash and junk cars accumulate on their property. Ortbals said the city would have somebody police such problems. Stephens said sarcastically, "Who? Somebody out of the Street Department?"

3rd Ward Alderman Paul Fisk interjected, "Call (Street Superintendent) Mac Warfield."

Stephens said, "I have!" Fisk responded by pointing out that Warfield is an elected official. "We can't tell elected officials what to do," Fisk said.

3rd Ward Alderman Andy Timko told Stephens to "call your alderman. He's the guy who takes care of your problems."

Upon being informed by one of the other aldermen present that Stephens was a resident of Timko's ward, Timko said, "I'll be there in the morning."

Glen Carbon, Pontoon try for centers

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

PONTOON BEACH — Two different development companies are looking at separate sites on which to construct large-scale shopping centers not far from Interstates 270 and 255. Depending on whose project gets off the ground first, Glen Carbon or Pontoon Beach could be the beneficiary.

Mathis Properties of St. Louis and Nashville, Tenn., has been interested in developing 250 acres of land south of Interstate 270 at Illinois 111 in Pontoon Beach.

Terra Properties of Highland is studying the feasibility of building a regional shopping center on the west side of Illinois 157, south of Interstate 270 in Glen Carbon.

A retail shopping area encompassing at least 400,000 square feet has been proposed in Pontoon Beach at the junction of Interstates 270 and Illinois 111, near Interstate 255, Mayor Glen Wilson said.

The 200-acre tract is owned by members of an Altan family trust, headed by lawyer Ernest Wyss.

Wyss also owns land adjacent to the new McDonald's Restaurant on 111 at Engineer Road.

Mayor Wilson said he didn't know about the center until publicity about it during the last few days. He does not view it as a competitive situation since as far as he knows the sites as well as the developers are different.

"We think our location would be the best (See PONTOON, Page 9A)

Madison father, son in copper-buy sting

MADISON — A father and son were arrested last week and charged with misdemeanors involving the purchase of copper at their recycling business.

Michael Antonovich Sr. and Michael Antonovich Jr. were arrested at about 4 p.m. Dec. 27 at the Madison Garden Shop and Material Supply, 1347 Madison Ave., by Madison police and Terminal Railroad Association Illinois State Police and Division of Criminal Investigation. But DCI had no record of the arrests.

State's Attorney Bill Haine could not be reached for comment. Antonovich Sr. posted $600 cash bail, and Antonovich Jr. posted $202 cash bail. No court date has been set, Buckley said.

The Madison Garden Shop and Material Supply is not connected with Schermer's Garden Shop, also located on Madison Avenue in Madison.

Local tykes first for 1990s

Three babies with local connections were "firsts" born at their respective hospitals Jan. 1. Robert Hamm Jr. was the first baby born in 1990 at Anderson Hospital in Maryville. Robert Jr., 8 pounds, 3 ounces, arrived at 10:29 a.m. Monday, New Year's Day.

The little Hamm made his entrance into the world right on schedule, according to his parents, Robert and Mary Hamm of Granite City.

Robert Jr. is the Hamm's first child. Because he was the first baby born at Anderson in 1990, the Hamm's were given a dozen roses and a savings bond, compliments of the hospital.

Rachel LeAnn Wofford was born at 14 minutes after midnight at St. Elizabeth Medical Center. Cindy and Ricky Wofford of Granite City. The Woffords have two other daughters, 6-year-old Kelly and Lisa, 3½. Rachel weighed in at 7 pounds, 9 ounces.

The first baby born in the St. Louis metro area in 1990 is Jessica Dawn Will, daughter of Michelle and Charles Will Jr. of Glen Carbon. Jessica was born at St. Mary's Health Center in Richmond Heights. The Will's have two other children, Anna Marie, 3, and Toni, 1.

Will is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Will Sr. of Granite City.

The first babies born in 1990 in the U.S. are believed to be Roisin Haran and Julie Gruttadauro, both born at one second after midnight Jan. 1 in suburban Chicago hospitals.

Haran was born at Christ Hospital in Oak Lawn, Ill. Gruttadauro was born at Good Samaritan Hospital in Downers Grove, according to Jan Barnett, a spokesman for Christ Hospital.

At St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City, eight babies presented their parents with tax deductions for 1989 income tax returns by being born before the end of the year, these between Dec. 28 and Dec. 30. There were no babies born here on Dec. 31.

'Tree of Lights' near goal

GRANITE CITY — The annual "Tree of Lights" campaign to raise funds to provide food, toys and other comforts for needy area families and individuals at Christmas time almost reached 100 percent of its $80,000 goal Wednesday afternoon.

"Despite the cold weather before Christmas, we are at 99 percent of our goal today," Salvation Army Capt. Curtis Hartley said.

The total amount of donations received through Wednesday noon amounted to $79,264. Hartley said. The drive is continuing.

$42,000 house blaze Tuesday

GRANITE CITY — A short circuit in an electrical wiring either in the living room wall or basement wall may have started a $42,000 fire Tuesday evening at the Robert Galbraith home, 1218 Meridian St., according to a fire department spokesman.

Firefighters responded to the blaze at 5:45 p.m. and remained at the scene for two hours and 45 minutes.

Estimated loss to the one-story frame residence was $30,000, with $10,000 projected loss to the contents.

Flu reported in area, but few absences noted

By Meg Tebo
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Flu seems to have struck this area, according to local medical officials, but schools and large businesses aren't reporting an inordinate number of absences.

St. Elizabeth Medical Center is reporting about 65-75 percent of its emergency room patients in the last two weeks have reported flu-like symptoms, while a local doctor, M. Gerard Baggot of Granite City, reported he has seen about 60-70 patients in the last several weeks who appear to have Hong Kong influenza.

"I'd almost call it an epidemic," Baggot said.

Despite the increased cases reported, however, local schools are not reporting a big increase in the number of students absent, according to Tom Holloway, who coordinates reporting of large-scale health matters for Granite City District 9.

"I haven't heard from any of the school nurses that they have a lot of flu cases, and the district procedure is that they'd call me if they had more than a few."

"Actually, though, students have been apart from each other for two weeks (for Christmas vacation), so we may begin to see more later in the week now that they're back together," said Holloway.

Patricia Gonwa, assistant principal at Coolidge Junior High, said several students had been sent home Tuesday and Wednesday with fevers, but she didn't think the illness was spreading.

"We've had maybe 2 percent more than average absent, but that's not unusual right after a long holiday," Gonwa said.

Those at the Madison and Venice school offices said they had not heard about any flu cases in their districts.

A manager at the Granite City K mart store reported he has not had a large number of employees calling in sick. Several other businesses reported being unaware of any large-scale illness in their firms.

Most of the patients Baggot sees are adults. He said he feels that adults are often more susceptible to flu than are children.

Baggot says that about the only remedy he can offer to patients is anti-diarrhea and anti-vomit medicines, as well as fever-reduction medication.

"Some also respond to antibiotics, but usually they aren't much help," he said.

Skating prohibited on campus

Ice skating is prohibited on Tower Lake and the various ponds on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. University police and campus housing authorities warned that even with severely cold weather over extended periods of time, the lake is considered unsafe because it receives heated water discharged from the Heating and Refrigeration Plant.

Ice may be thick in one area but soft in another, and the areas are changing constantly because of shifting water currents.

Skating on other bodies of water is prohibited because the university does not have personnel who can be assigned to supervise the activities.

New year brings 1989 tax forms

Coming soon to a mailbox near you: Your 1989 federal tax forms.

Most Granite Citizens have received their form or will in the next few days, but receiving them will be the least of their worries. Although the 1989 forms look a lot like 1988's, the Internal Revenue Service says there are some changes that affect many people.

You must enter on your return the Social Security number of each person age 2 or over whom you claim as a dependent.

If you claim the credit for child and dependent care expenses or dependent care benefits provided by your employer, you must report the care provider's name and address. And, unless it is a tax-exempt organization, include the provider's Social Security number or employer identification number.

Reimbursed employee work expenses can no longer be claimed on the front of the 1040 form.

Most employee business expenses can only be claimed as miscellaneous itemized deductions on Schedule A.

Because none of the much-discussed proposals to reduce the tax on capital gains were adopted, Schedule D for reporting capital gains and losses is similar to last year's. A new form, Schedule D-1, is now available for people who need more room to report sales of stock and other capital assets.

The IRS says people who are eligible for Medicare benefits can ignore references to

File returns electronically

People claiming refunds can have their 1989 federal income tax returns filed electronically starting this month, the Internal Revenue Service says.

Began in 1986 in just three metropolitan areas, electronic filing will be available in all 50 states for the first time this year. Offered, usually for a fee, by many professional tax preparers as well as some banks and employers, electronic filing involves using a computer and telephone modem to send returns directly to the IRS. This service is available to people who do own returns as well as those who have them professionally prepared.

IRS officials said electronic filing can save time and trouble by speeding up refunds and cutting down errors. Refunds are normally issued within three weeks of filing. People can cut the wait to as little as two weeks by choosing to have their refunds deposited directly into their bank accounts. Since this option eliminates the possibility of a lost or stolen check, it may be particularly attractive to people who travel a lot, move soon after filing, live in high-crime areas, or for what ever reason have difficulty getting their mail.

The IRS electronically verifies receipt of these returns within two days. So there's no reason to worry about the return possibly getting lost in the mail.

To find out who offers electronic filing in your area, call the IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-1040.

the IRS said.

The Revenue Service notes that it "encourages you to order these forms early, using the order blank in your tax package."

Also available are more than 100 free publications covering topics ranging from interest expense to Individual Retirement Accounts.

Simon says he won't bail out S&amp;L bailout plan

President George Bush says the four-month-old, $50 billion savings and loan bailout plan may run out of money before its work is done. But Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., who opposed the plan, says he would find it difficult to support "pouring even more taxpayer money into a flawed process."

Bush's comments during December were the first suggestion from the administration that more funds may be needed to solve the third industry crisis. "It's a whale of a mess," Bush said.

The package, signed by the President Aug. 9, provided $50 billion through September 1991 to guarantee deposits at insolvent thrifts and to line up sales of ailing S&Ls to private investors.

Simon said the actual tab is more like $166 billion when the cost of borrowing money through 10-year bonds is included, a sum that tops the earlier government rescues of Chrysler, Lockheed, New York City and the Marshall Plan.

The bill charters a new agency, the Resolution Trust Corp. (RTC), to implement the plan. The agency already has taken over 313 thrifts and could take over 200 more.

Simon released this statement

after the President's comments:

"Many of us warned months ago that this bailout someday would need a bailout of its own. But few of us knew it would come so soon. After only four months, the administration already is talking about a bailout for the bailout."

"I opposed the bailout bill passed by Congress, and my concerns about the S&L crisis continue. I would be inclined to oppose any new bill that heaps even more taxpayer money into this flawed process."

"The bill passed by Congress and signed by the President last August did address some of the existing problems, but it created others, and one of these was the establishment of the Resolution Trust Corp."

"The RTC was set up to dispose of assets taken over from insolvent thrifts, to do this quickly, and at the best possible price."

"Estimates of the value of these assets ranged from $300 billion to $500 billion. But the RTC was created without the normal oversight and it is free from all accountability."

"To me this was an invitation to disaster, a scandal of HUD-like proportions waiting to happen."

"The RTC has already spent $10 billion of the $50 billion appropriated by Congress for the purpose of disposing of defunct thrifts.

"Thirty-three institutions have been disposed of, but it appears the $50 billion is not enough."

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

When a person is charged with Driving Under The Influence (DUI), the question sometimes arises as to whether the driver is eligible for court supervision on the charge. Court supervision will usually allow the defendant to continue driving, while a conviction on the charge will normally result in a revocation of his driving privileges.

It is important to note, however, that court supervision is not available as a sentencing alternative for a DUI defendant if he has done one of three things in the last five years. These three things are: (1) defendant has been convicted of DUI; (2) defendant has been assigned court supervision for DUI; (3) defendant has pleaded guilty to or stipulated to the facts supporting a charge of reckless driving pursuant to a plea agreement.

It is apparent from the statute that court supervision will be available to a DUI defendant only once every five years. Furthermore, courts have interpreted the law in such a way that the five year period commences with the defendant's conviction, assignment of supervision, or guilty plea.

In one recent case, on May 8, 1983, a defendant was arrested for DUI. He was assigned one year of court supervision on August 30, 1984. Then on August 20, 1988, he was again arrested and charged with DUI. The question arose as to whether he was eligible for court supervision on this most recent DUI.

The answer to this question depended upon whether the five year period commenced with the defendant's initial arrest on May 8, 1983, or with his assignment of court supervision on August 30, 1984. The defendant argued that the law was not clear and that therefore it should be resolved in his favor.

The Appellate Court felt the language of the statute was clear, and that the five year period here commenced on August 30, 1984, the date the driver was first assigned court supervision. The defendant was thus not eligible to receive court supervision on the most recent DUI since it was less than five years between the original assignment of court supervision and the most recent filing of charges on the instant DUI.

It's a good idea; just buy it

Mandatory automobile insurance is an idea whose time has come. In fact, if you don't have it by now you might be out of luck.

Although it will probably be used as a reason to eventually increase insurance rates for just about everybody, there is no reason not to adopt a premise as sound as this one. Forcing each driver to have insurance protects insured drivers from facing the costs of damages that aren't their fault. Making all drivers play by the same rules should make insurance rates easier to calculate as well as anticipate.

But there are sounder reasons. Like facing a fine of at least $500 or suspension of license plates, for instance.

In addition to the penalty incentive, drivers who force themselves to buy insurance under this mandate will be more likely to drive safer, particularly when they know their insurance premium is riding on it.

The only drawback to the program is that insurance companies are being required to create a high risk pool on the state level to cover people who cannot get insurance from individual carriers. There will be no insurance pool for those people who have good driving records but simply cannot afford insurance.

The Secretary of State's Office will use a lot of ways to detect miscreants, including police traffic stops, random computer checks and accident reports.

Our advice is to get your insurance in order, before your next traffic stop.

Tax, fax, beep laws for '90

In addition to mandatory auto liability insurance and a 3-cent per gallon motor fuel tax rise, other laws went into effect New Year's Day but it wasn't exactly a bumper crop.

Greater sales tax uniformity has been achieved, easing retailers' paperwork. All exemptions will be statewide, and the basic rate will be 6 1/2 percent throughout Illinois.

Although change sometimes seems to occur slowly, many of the new laws are clearly 1990-vintage; they would not have been thought of a decade or two ago. Examples:

• People who use facsimile (fax) machines to send unsolicited advertising can be charged with a petty offense.

• Students are forbidden to carry or use automatic pagers or "beepers" on a campus, since use of the devices often is associated these days with drug dealing.

• School systems must provide seventh through 12th graders with instruction on steroid abuse.

• School bus drivers must take regular tests monitoring their use of drugs and alcohol.

• Liquor stores must display signs warning pregnant women that alcohol can cause birth defects.

• A final note for taxpayers is that they now have an official "bill of rights." It formalizes Department of Revenue procedures to ensure the rights of taxpayers and protect their privacy and property rights, especially during the tax collection process. It also creates an ombudsman office for taxpayers.

• A copy of the Taxpayers' Bill of Rights is on the back cover of the 1989 IL-1040 individual income tax booklet.

Nearing the top of the tree

The Quad City area Salvation Army campaign known as the "Tree of Lights" is right on schedule, in one way of looking at it. It didn't reach its goal before the Christmas-New Year's holidays, but it's close.

Receipts as of yesterday stood at $79,264. The $80,000 goal is in reach and is likely to be attained in a few days.

Meanwhile, the fund-raising efforts were successful enough that the traditional Christmas giving of food, clothing and toys to the needy proceeded as planned, lifting hundreds of families' spirits in both tangible and intangible ways.

Quad Citizens once again have proven themselves to be among the most generous people anywhere in the world.

Best things truly are free

If I pocketed all the money that new mothers and brides-to-be tried to pay me each week, I'd own this paper.

Before you read too much into that statement perhaps I should explain. Hardly a day goes by that someone doesn't call to ask how much it costs to print weddings and birth announcements.

The answer, of course, is nothing. Absolutely nothing.

That might not seem like grounds for much discussion, and those of you who have shared past events with the paper might think the whole premise kind of absurd. But if you consider that I've answered this same question more than 100 times in the last year, you'll see my point.

I have a feeling it's why you don't see more announcements in the paper. Considering that our region has a pretty good population base, you would assume that there would be around 25 or so weddings each week. But of that number only three or four make it to the newspaper office for publication.

The county clerk's office sends out a list of marriage licenses each week, numbering between 50 and 100 on average. Many of these are second marriages or remarriages, probably not meriting much publicity, but most of them are first-timers, and one could logically assume that those involved would be happy to see their event in print.

The same goes for births. Dozens of newborns with ties to our coverage area are born each week, but we only announce few, simply because no one gives us the remainder. (We are, however, attempting an arrangement with two local hospitals that will allow us to submit forms to new mothers while they are still at the hospital.)

Where I come from (Madison County, Ill., born and bred) the first thing most women read are the births, obituaries and weddings. As far as I know, that practice hasn't changed.

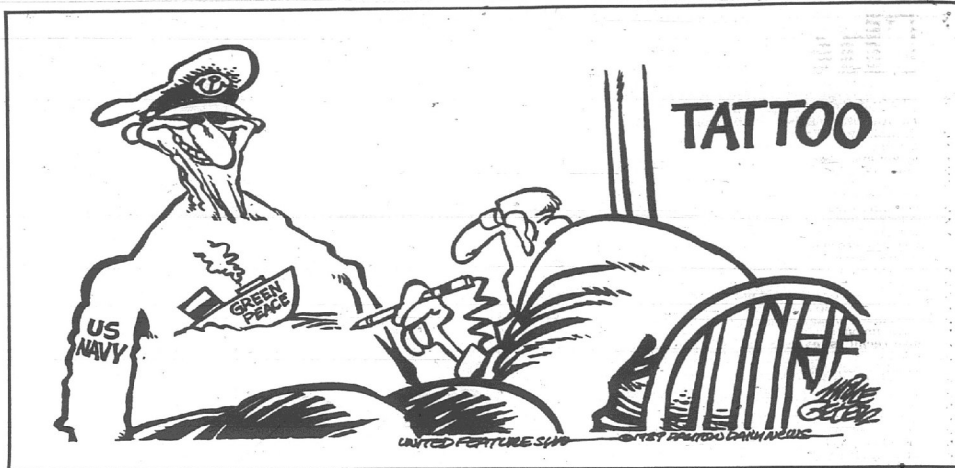

So if the news is there and the audience is there, where are the reports? The only conclusion I can draw is that some people assume they have to pay to see their announcement in print.

Some papers do charge for society news, but those are usually the larger metropolitan papers that don't consider community tidbits their main asset.

We're not one of 'em. Forms are available in our office, and that fact is noted in virtually every edition.

If weddings and births are among the best things in life, and the best things in life are free, then maybe all those new moms and brides should consider taking advantage of the opportunity of a lifetime — at no expense.

Abortion not an alternative to prevention

To the editor:

We are, indeed, a selfish society. The growing support for legal abortion is an example.

I am 35, a child of the '60s (with beard and long hair). I patronize "rock and roll" night clubs and I am not a saint. Yet, I cannot see abortion as an alternative to prevention.

I've heard or read all of the arguments for the right of a mother to have her unborn child executed. "But don't execute convicted rapists, murderers, child molesters or drug pushers. It's barbaric."

Abortion, in most cases, is not because of rape or incest. It is the "quick fix" for irresponsibility. A woman does have the freedom of choice; she can choose from a wide variety of methods designed to prevent conception, including "No!"

It is easy to cover up the ugliness of abortion by calling unincent unborn human life a clinical name like "fetus" but what about the long-term impact on our society? If we accept the excuse, "Well, she was too young and could not give a baby proper care or a good life," why not legalize infanticide for a mother recently widowed, divorced, or unemployed?

Ahh, but at what age should we determine it to be illegal? Two years old...five, six? "I'm single. I can't have a baby. What would people think?" Yes, let's knock off Uncle Joe. He has always been an embarrassment to the family. "It was a mistake. I don't have the time to take care of someone. I have a career to pursue."

Grandma or Grandpa or Mom or Dad might become an unplanned burden, so let's legalize geriatric genocide. What if the baby is mentally or physically handicapped? "No problem. Kill it."

Pass a law to allow execution of all handicapped people. Wouldn't they prefer death instead of a handicap?

Will the next generation, influenced by an abortion-permissive society, be sympathetic to the old, homeless, unproductive or handicapped? "Put them to sleep. They are really better off. The humane thing to do. No more pain or misery. No more a burden on society."

You think this could never happen? Ask anyone if 25 years ago, they had ever imagined legal abortions on demand. "Social Security or Medicare for Baby Boomers? Who will be there to pay for it? Shoot 'em!"

If via euthanasia or abortion we become outnumbered, what will be the effect on our national security? Suppose Einstein, Bell, Franklin or Abraham Lincoln had been aborted — what would life be like today?

The undiscovered genius with the cure for cancer or AIDS might be the fetus in the trash from some clinic. Today's technology may be destroying tomorrow's.

What excuse for abortion do you think would be acceptable to Jesus? He thinks kids are special. Would he blame the "fetus" or the rapist?

I wonder if God would accept the argument, "(I) didn't have an abortion. I just fought for the right to choose." Or, "I was always against abortion. I didn't do anything to help; too busy. I didn't get involved."

I thought "we the people" controlled our government, but a recent article had a photo of pre-abortionists (in Washington, D.C.) with a huge banner that read, "Women's Control. Not State Control." The bottom line.

Dr. Melvin Freedman earned a patient's tribute

The following is a tribute to the late Dr. Melvin Freedman.

Dear Dr. Mel: When I first heard how sick you were, and that you probably wouldn't be back in the office again, I determined to write you a note to tell you how much I've appreciated you over the years. But the holidays were at hand — I'd wait until things settled down a bit.

Today, I learned that I'd waited too long that time had run out for both of us. But for my peace of mind, I still have to write you a letter, or better yet, a tribute of sorts.

You always referred to me as your first major surgery after coming to Granite City, and going into practice with Dr. Irvin Wiesman. I was 16. You were to be my doctor for many years to come.

I always loved your sense of humor. I don't think I ever went to see you that you didn't have a joke to tell me. I asked you one time if you told jokes to all your patients, and you said, "No. I've learned who will and will not enjoy a good laugh. I don't waste the effort on some patients."

And you always had time to talk with me — explain in detail the whys and wherefores of my current problem. You were always considerate, understanding, and compassionate. And the one thing I admired most about you, I think, is the fact that if you ran into a situation you felt was not within your expertise, you never hesitated to admit it and refer me to someone who specialized in that particular field.

I always enjoyed hearing about your children, though you never mentioned them unless I asked. As proud as you were of all of them and their many accomplishments, you weren't the bragging parent you might have been.

Saying this about you reminds me of the day in your office, almost 22 years ago, when you looked up at me and gave me the "OK" sign. My heart nearly burst with happiness. Gail, your nurse at the time, started crying and you were smiling from ear to ear! After nearly nine years of marriage, I was finally to have a child. I remember your asking who I wanted to take care of the baby at birth, and I replied, "You, of course. Who else?"

You cared for three generations of my family and often kidded me, as my daughter grew into adulthood, about wanting to care for the fourth generation. I always told you I wasn't ready to be a grandma, yet. I wish you could have cared for my grandchildren. I had so much faith in you and your medical opinions.

But now you're gone, and so many of us who loved you didn't get the chance to say goodbye. I regret that. You were not only my doctor, you were my friend — but did I ever say that to you? I think not. How sad to think so much of someone, and never to tell them. I'll always regret that.

To Mrs. Freedman, and the four children, I express my sincere sympathy in your loss. It's our loss, too. May God be with you all, during the difficult days ahead. To you, Dr. Mel, good-bye, good and faithful doctor and friend. You'll be missed by this community.

Alcohol awareness needed

To the editor:

Thanks so much for having so many things in your paper about alcohol and alcoholism in the last months.

It really has made many people aware of so many things.

So once again, we in the self-help programs are thanking you for doing this and also for running our weekly meeting in the calendar sections.

This information has brought in families that were made aware that such things were going on.

We have been reading a lot about the alcoholism addiction, places that you can go to for treatment, information that you can get, and that this is of No. 1 importance to everyone.

One person who is abusing alcohol can affect at least nine people. The family becomes just as sick as the user.

Groups that can be of assistance include AA (Alcoholics Anonymous) for the alcoholic and Al-Anon for the family of the alcoholic.

For further information, call 876-6467.

Addict grateful for assist

To the editor:

I'm a grateful recovering drug addict and alcoholic. I badly abused myself for 20 years, but through the help of some very special friends I have turned my life around.

I would like to announce the recent birth of my son, Thomas, and I would like to thank those responsible for him, from the Phoenix Crisis Center, to the Coordinated Youth Services to the United Way to Cardinal Glennon Hospital.

I thank everyone so much for what they have done for me. We have together found a new life, a new beginning. I pray for us and others like us.

The Top 10 local stories of 1989

1. American Steel back

When American Steel Foundries' Granite City Works manager Bill Donovan lowered the flag at the plant and closed its doors in November 1982, he said he didn't believe the closure would last.

The million-square-foot foundry closed because there was no market for its product — side frames and bolsters for railroad cars — and it was placed in mothballs.

As years passed, most people began to lose faith and were ready to add American Steel to the growing list of abandoned heavy industry sites in the Metro East. But ASF continued to negotiate contracts with unions and maintained an active recall list of more than 900 workers.

Even ASF President Norm Berg said he was always told it would be a cold day when the Granite City foundry reopened. Ironically he was right. On a freezing Wednesday late last February, Berg and a host of others met on a newly renovated molding floor of the foundry to announce the resumption of production.

Production resumed in early summer and Donovan said the foundry currently has 262 workers, mostly former workers who were recalled.

He said working on a new molding floor meant the workers had to de-bug the system while, at the same time, maintain production. "We are only at a minor capacity of the plant as a whole," he said. "But we are close to capacity on the one open molding floor. And the market, so far, seems to be good."

Meanwhile, another sign that Granite City will remain a steel town came with the decision by National Steel Corp. to build a second continuous caster at Granite City Steel. The $140 million construction project would be America's first 100 percent continuous cast steelmaker.

2. Voters OK MESD tax

After rejecting a 26-cent tax increase in the fall of 1988, voters in February approved the tax proposal to help finance rehabilitation of the Metro East Sanitary District flood protection system.

The measure passed by a 3-1 margin after elected officials and community leaders pulled out all the stops in a massive public relations campaign for the tax.

Passage of the tax, calculated to raise about $5.75 million, raised the MESD real estate tax rate from 21.7 cents to 47.8 cents per $100 of assessed value through 1994. After that, it drops down to 21.2 cents per $100.

Passage also meant the federal government would kick in 75 percent of the total needed to rehabilitate the system.

The estimated cost of total rehabilitation was later revised upward from $31 million to $38 million, according to MESD Executive Director Shang Greathouse and officials of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Officials had warned that failure to pass the tax would result in the area losing its protected-flood-plain status. This would have led to severe restrictions on federal home and building loans and an increase in flood-insurance rates.

Some work has been done but MESD is still waiting to hear whether the Corps of Engineers will clear about 50 miles of drainage ditches, Greathouse said. That cost is estimated at about $20 million, or about 70 percent of the original project.

3. City leaders clash

Granite City Mayor Von Dee Cruse and Street Superintendent Mac Warfield started 1989 as opponents in a heated mayoral race.

Following ballot nominations selected by the editor, the staff of the Press-Record/Journal selected the stories on this page as the most important of the past 12 months. Many will make news in 1990.

During the campaign, each blamed the city's problems on the other's incompetence.

Cruse was re-elected, but continued to attack Warfield's management of the Street Department. Warfield said the mayor and City Council spent their time bickering and left his department without either a plan or money.

The escapades took a new turn later in the year when Warfield complained that some of his employees were abusing the department's sick-leave system.

Cruse said the morale at the department and the high absenteeism were indications of Warfield's failure as a manager, and ultimately called for Warfield to resign. Cruse, without conferring with Warfield, then hired an Bryan Avenue, pleaded guilty Sept. 11 to first-degree murder and arson in the death of Hunt. He has been sentenced to 30 years.

Neighbors were stunned. Said Sheryl Horgan: "Thirty years isn't long enough for what he did to Sheila ... Sheila was a good neighbor and we haven't forgotten her."

Hunt's beaten and strangled body was found by firefighters in her burning home, just two houses from where McGuire lived with his wife and stepdaughter. The fire had been deliberately set, police said.

The Major Case Squad of Greater St. Louis investigated the slaying for a five-day period, but it was local police who on June 21 arrested the man who had been a key suspect.

Meanwhile, nearly everybody is interested in the Aquacenter idea, but launching it isn't simple.

Plans to finance a feasibility study to determine if the village is a viable location for an Aquacenter complex were recently placed on hold pending a village audit.

6. Abortion protests

A series of anti-abortion protests at Hope Clinic for Women in Granite City resulted in a number of stories in 1989.

The first protest was on Jan. 21, the day before the 16th anniversary of the Roe vs. Wade U.S. Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion. It resulted in the arrest of 30 protesters, 29 of whom were later convicted; 26 were convicted of criminal trespass to property and three were convicted of disorderly conduct. None were from Madison County.

Three more demonstrations in July and August resulted in the arrest of 92 more protesters. Organizers had threatened to shut down the clinic at the last of these, on Aug. 5, promising that 1,000 would show up. Only 200 materialized.

Some attempted to block cars from entering the parking lot of the clinic, located at 1602 21st St., across from the St. Elizabeth Medical Center emergency room but not related to SEMC.

Clinic workers and volunteers countered by surrounding arriving cars and escorting patients into a rear entrance to the clinic.

Susan Morton, director of the home from a softball game. State's Attorney Bill Haine filed a reckless homicide charge against Smith. He praised the Granite City Police Department for its efficient work in the case.

But the reckless homicide allegation was dropped in October by Associate Judge Lawrence Keshner, who ruled the case had not come to trial in the 120 days mandated by the state speedy trial rules. The state's attorney and public defender blamed each other for the delays. Remarks by Haine to Judge Keshner later prompted Haine's apology.

Haine is awaiting an appeal he filed with the 5th District Appellate Court in Mount Vernon.

Haine and Chief Criminal Circuit Judge Edward Ferguson have since agreed on docket rule changes that Haine said would prevent similar incidents.

8. Bowler pleads guilty

Paul Ray Bowler, vice president of the Granite City School Board and a former Granite City alderman, found out just before New Year's Day 1989 he was under federal indictment on four counts of making false statements on a loan application involving his purchase of four Oakmont apartment buildings in Pontoon Beach.

He had just picked up petitions in a later unsuccessful effort to run for city treasurer.

On Feb. 16, Bowler pleaded guilty to one count; the other three were dropped. Bowler said that when presented with the facts, he realized a law had been broken.

Bowler said he had assumed everything he had done was legal because he had followed the advice of an unnamed real estate agent.

On April 20, it became apparent the unnamed real estate agent was Gaye Flood of Flood Realty Center — she was indicted on one count of conspiracy and six counts of making false statements. Six of the seven counts deal directly with Bowler's Oakmont purchases.

Flood's trial is scheduled for March 12 at the Eastern District Federal Court, and Bowler is expected to be a key witness.

Bowler, after a hearing in Madison County Circuit Court, was allowed to keep his position on the school board pending sentencing, now slated in April.

9. Murder-suicide ruled

When family members found Don Jurgenson and David Mathis dead of gunshot wounds in a bedroom of Jurgenson's home on Washington Avenue Oct. 27, no one was quite sure who did it.

In December, a coroner's jury ruled that Mathis had killed Jurgenson and then shot himself in an apparent attempt to release both himself and Jurgenson from legal troubles.

Jurgenson had recently been arrested on a charge of aggravated criminal sexual assault involving an underage girl; Mathis feared revocation of his probation on a drug conviction for his failure to pay court-ordered fines.

Wife Kathleen Jurgenson's son Dan Churovich said: "If David did kill Don, it was for our sakes. He may have thought he was going to rid the world of a guy who was just miserable."

Both men were found to be legally drunk at their deaths.

10. Downtown's plan

Granite City Mayor Von Dee Cruse and the Downtown Committee had high hopes for a Wal-Mart store in downtown Granite City at the beginning of 1989.

And because he was in the midst of a re-election campaign, some opponents said Cruse was holding off news for political reasons.

The expected announcement didn't come before the election, it didn't come after the election and at the end of the summer there was still no word.

By November Alderman Jim Miller, Downtown Committee chairman, said city had to "kill the golden goose" and dump Wal-Mart. The city shifted gears and began seeking options on six square blocks of downtown property between Madison and Edison avenues and 20th and 18th streets.

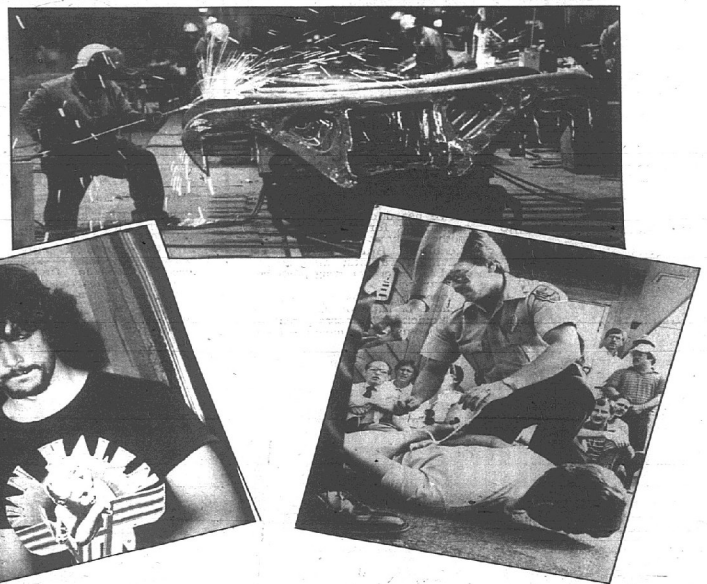

The city hopes to have options on 75 percent of the property by the end of March and be able to begin a massive developer search that should culminate with the International Council of Shopping Centers Expo in May.

Economic Development Director Alan Orbels said that, if everything works, he expects to have a commitment from a developer by the fall of 1990.

And, Cruse said, Wal-Mart still hasn't said no.

SCENES FROM the past year include, from left: Mark McGuire, sentenced to 30 years in the killing of Granite City resident Sheila Hunt; a grinder working on the side frame of a "truck" for a railroad car at the rekindled American Steel Foundry; and Granite policemen arresting abortion protesters at one of several incidents that took place in Hope Clinic.

Some work has been done but MESD is still waiting to hear whether the Corps of Engineers will clear about 50 miles of drainage ditches, Greathouse said. That cost is estimated at about $20 million, or about 70 percent of the original project.

4. Hunt murder solved

5. Aquacenter targeted

Village officials are being cautious but remain optimistic about getting the $30 million St. Louis Aquacenter established in Pontoon Beach.

Trustees also are hoping to see the rebirth of Oakmont Plaza Shopping Center in the 4000 block of Pontoon Road, with a restaurant and retail shops occupying the renovated center.

Out-of-state investors are interested in developing the area close to Illinois 111 and Interstates 270 and 255. Both major interstates have interchanges in the village.

Currently under consideration is a proposal to construct near I-270 and I-255 a shopping center said to be larger than St. Clair Square. Visitors, mostly businessmen and investors, are frequently seen looking over the area.

Three more demonstrations in July and August resulted in the arrest of 92 more protesters. Organizers had threatened to shut down the clinic at the last of these, on Aug. 5, promising that 1,000 would show up. Only 200 materialized.

Some attempted to block cars from entering the parking lot of the clinic, located at 1602 21st St., across from the St. Elizabeth Medical Center emergency room but not related to SEMC.

Clinic workers and volunteers countered by surrounding arriving cars and escorting patients into a rear entrance to the clinic.

Susan Morton, director of the home from a softball game. State's Attorney Bill Haine filed a reckless homicide charge against Smith. He praised the Granite City Police Department for its efficient work in the case.

But the reckless homicide allegation was dropped in October by Associate Judge Lawrence Keshner, who ruled the case had not come to trial in the 120 days mandated by the state speedy trial rules. The state's attorney and public defender blamed each other for the delays. Remarks by Haine to Judge Keshner later prompted Haine's apology.

Haine is awaiting an appeal he filed with the 5th District Appellate Court in Mount Vernon.

Haine and Chief Criminal Circuit Judge Edward Ferguson have since agreed on docket rule changes that Haine said would prevent similar incidents.

It also was Eiffel who perfected the technique of using compressed air to sink foundation cylinders. He built the iron framework for Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty, a gift from France to the United States, situated in New York Harbor.

In his spare time, Eiffel drew on his knowledge of air resistance to write a book for aeronautical engineers, published in 1913.

His works also figured in news headlines around the world as 1989 drew to a close. Eiffel designed the Panama Canal's huge locks when the French were working on that project.

Protection of commerce through the locks was one of the goals cited by President George Bush in the United States' invasion of Panama last month.

Eiffel's Tower beginning 2nd century; he also designed Panama locks

Second of two columns. Once called unlovely, the Eiffel Tower is now the "eyeful" of Paris, attracting tourists to France from all over the world.

It not only is a renowned landmark, now starting its second century, but also is seen as creating symmetrical beauty above the Paris skyline, despite its use of stark, skeleton-like structural elements.

MADE OF WROUGHT IRON, the tower rises to a height of 964 feet from a square base that measures 300 feet from one corner to the next.

Even when it was constructed, despite the criticism by some that it was ugly, the tower was recognized as an engineering marvel.

There were no other structures so tall, and yet it was regarded as so strongly designed and assembled that it could remain standing virtually forever, with adequate maintenance.

Located on the Champs de Mars, it provides ideal views of Paris from three different levels.

BREATHTAKING by day, the views from the three vantage points are even more spectacular at night.

The scenery of the "City of Lights" can be witnessed from four different directions by walking only a few steps from any of the viewing platforms.

The lowest of the three levels includes a plush restaurant. The tower also was designed for a weather station and includes space for scientific experiments.

AN IMPORTANT military observation post in World War I, the tower later became highly useful as a point of transmission for the signals of broadcasting stations.

Alexandre Gustave Eiffel built it for the World Exposition in Paris in 1889, held on the 100th anniversary of the French republic, and the grateful government named it for him.

Stairways lead to the platforms and to the top, but use of the elevators is strongly recommended. It can get mighty windy at the various heights.

The Eiffel Tower contains 7,300 tons of iron and steel.

It was still attracting vast numbers of sightseers.

For many years it was the tallest man-made structure in the world, but has since been surpassed by radio and television towers and by "skyscraper" office buildings.

The first to exceed its height was the Empire State Building in New York City.

Alexandre Eiffel was immortalized by the tower, but it was not his only accomplishment. He designed many bridges, and it was Eiffel who perfected the technique of using compressed air to sink foundation cylinders.

He built the iron framework for

Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty, a gift from France to the United States, situated in New York Harbor.

In his spare time, Eiffel drew on his knowledge of air resistance to write a book for aeronautical engineers, published in 1913.

Isaiah 44:24 "...I am the Lord that maketh all things..."

How easy it is to forget that God is the Creator. Not only did He create the universe, but He is also the Creator of man. He made us. We did not make Him. Yet, we continually try to make God in our image.

We seem to want a God that winks at sin — one who is not at all serious about holiness and righteousness, and one who will let us live as we please and then take us all to a place called Heaven.

He that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him. We must exalt our Heavenly Father and submit our will to His. Let us fill the purpose for which we were created.

East Granite

was veering out of control, 2nd Ward Alderman Jim Miller asked the crowd not to let the meeting "deteriorate into a gripe session."

Likening the city's plans for East Granite to an unabated Miller said, "Keep in mind the pile is not finished. It's still in the oven."

Next to speak was the Rev. Rudolph Muzzarelli, pastor of the Pentecostal Church of God on East 24th Street. Muzzarelli referred to something Orbital had mentioned earlier — 2½ percent loans for home improvement, available through Madison County. Muzzarelli said he was very interested in learning more about such a program.

But Muzzarelli said he had recently purchased a dilapidated house in the same neighborhood with the intent to rehab it when he could afford. He said he was afraid the project as Orbital might mean the city could "tell my house is a dump and tear it down."

Muzzarelli said the house would cost him more to fix up than he would not own it. His remarks were greeted with loud applause by the crowd.

Orbital responded by saying the city just not only informed residents of work that needed to be done but would help them find funds to fix their homes.

Patti McDaniel of the 2500 block of East 25th Street spoke next. She said she and her husband had lived in the Central West End of St. Louis for 20 years. The neighborhood was revitalized by a combination of public and private initiatives.

She said she believed the same thing could happen in East Granite if residents were willing to work toward that goal.

The neighborhood, she said, was "not just houses and things, it's people. If we believe in ourselves, we can do it."

A man named Parker got up and said he appreciated the city for "this positive move" and said, "I think we should support it." But he said he hoped there would be more meetings such as Wednesday's to discuss the city's plans further.

Orbital promised there would be more public meetings, but not one that would impact the city. Orbital also said the city hoped to complete the East Granite rehabilitation by the end of 1990. Nobody questioned that timetable.

Parker had asked Orbital to explain the safe-return program. Orbital said it involved limiting vehicular access to the neighborhood.

Some significant changes are in store for Illinois taxpayers and state government revenue with the beginning of a new decade.

Several major law changes became effective on Jan. 1, 1990, including sales tax reform, which represents one of the most important modifications of the Illinois tax system since the introduction of the income tax 20 years ago.

Sales tax reform was designed to simplify the state's complicated sales tax system. The most noticeable difference for Illinois retailers is the new sales tax form, which has been reduced from 65 to 28 lines. The form has also been redesigned to make it easier to follow and complete.

"The taxpayer and tax collector will be saving time and resources with the simplified sales tax form," said Revenue Director Roger D. Sweet. "The new form should also make life easier for taxpayers by simplifying input and suggestions helped improve the form."

Other major changes under sales tax reform include:

• A basic statewide rate of 6 1/4 percent.

• A common tax base; exemptions will be statewide.

• One sales tax collector, the Illinois Department of Revenue.

• A new collection fee for retailers of 1.75 percent, calculated on their total tax collection.

Consumers and local governments will notice very little change as a result of sales tax reform, Sweet said.

The total amount of sales taxes paid by consumers on virtually all transactions will remain the same. Sales tax payments to local governments will continue on a monthly basis and the amounts received should be approximately the same as before.

In addition to sales tax reform, these other tax law changes went into effect on Jan. 1, 1990:

• A 3-cent per gallon increase in the state motor fuel tax, which brings the rate to 19 cents a gallon for gasoline and 21.5 cents a gallon for diesel.

• A new 3-cent petroleum products tax for cleaning up leaking underground storage tanks.

• New procedures for contributing to income tax checkoffs are effective (all taxpayers can donate, and there is no maximum amount for donations).

• "Taxpayers' Bill of Rights goes into effect."

The Taxpayers' Bill of Rights, in effect, formalizes department procedures which ensure the rights of taxpayers and protect their privacy and property rights, especially during the tax collection process. It also creates an Ombudsman Office for taxpayers.

A copy of the Taxpayers' Bill of Rights will be included in most department notices and can be found on the back cover of the 1989 IL-1040 individual income tax booklet.

Individuals with questions about any of the new law changes or the Taxpayers' Bill of Rights can contact the Department of Revenue toll-free at 1-800-732-8866.

Age prevented her from having any further children.

Johnson said she nearly died before doctors at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis removed the sponges in September 1985. She said her appendix and intestines were damaged, and that her female organs were basically destroyed.

"I thank God I'm alive," Johnson said. "I was told I had gangrene inside when I got to the hospital. They said if they had waited two more days to do the operation, I might have died."

hood. St. Louis has done this in some neighborhoods by means of one-way streets and barricades. Orbital said St. Louis' safe-return program has dramatically reduced crime in the areas it has been used. He said it gives residents "a much better idea of who is supposed to be there and who isn't."

Another man asked about the problem of asbestos landfills who don't keep up their property and don't furnish their properties with enough trash containers.

Orbital promised that the city would crack down on violators.

Bonnie Shemonia of the 2500 block of East 27th Street said Mayor Cruse had made a campaign promise to provide the city's young people with a teen town — something that has not materialized. She suggested that Webster School could be used for a teen town, and said that it might help reduce the incidence of drug abuse among the city's young people.

Her suggestion drew vigorous applause, and 2nd Ward Alderman Jim Miller said it was "a good idea," but he suggested that such a project would require citizen involvement.

In response to a question about the project's timetable, Orbital said he would be meeting next week with officials of Madison County Community Development.

He said he hoped the City Council would approve a final plan in late January, with house inspections to start in February. The demolition of Webster School and its conversion into a park this summer, and trees to be planted this spring.

Second Ward Alderman Virgil Kanburian said a neighborhood organization was needed in East Granite, similar to the Downtown Neighborhood Restoration Society. "In the final analysis," he said, "you people are going to have to help us."

First Ward Alderman Casmer Shivers said the revitalization of East Granite could be accomplished if "we believe in ourselves that we can do it."

His remarks were greeted with applause.

Also greeted by applause were comments by John Petrillo of the 2400 block of Iowa Street, who commented on the condition of sidewalks in the neighborhood and overgrown weeds.

"Where the hell is the city inspector?" Petrillo asked.

Robert Guffey, the first speaker, was applauded after asking, "If the whole idea is to clean up East Granite, why are you going to make the coke plant clean up its act? I can't keep my house clean and I know the air is dangerous to breathe."

Tori Harrison got up to suggest that the paperwork alone in an area comprising almost 1,000 homes would be too much work for one inspector, if he were to help people find money to improve their homes, as he planned. She suggested seeking volunteers to help the inspector, who has not yet been appointed.

Orbital said he thought Harrison's idea was "good point."

After the meeting, members of the crowd milled around talking to aldermen and each other, and inspecting the map of the proposed redevelopment area.

Robert Guffey, the carpenter, said he thought the whole plan was a scheme by the city to raise more taxes by raising property values.

One last look

Before we plunge headlong into 1990, it's worth one last look at the images of 1989. Sure, there were losers and near-winners. But everyone who competed — past and present — will have to go down as a winner. These are just a few of the moments and personalities that made 1989 a fun year for us to follow the exploits of all our local athletes.

Area schedules return to normal

By Dave Whaley

Executive sports editor

It's back to business as usual this weekend for area teams as they put the holiday tournaments behind them.

The Warrior basketball team (7-5) resumes Southwestern Conference play at home Friday with an 8 p.m. game against Belleville West. The Warriors (6-3) finished third in the Centria Holiday Tournament. They are led by stocky guard Dan Biegler (16.1 points per game) and have won five of six since a 1-2 start.

Granite City is looking to upgrade its offense, and more playing time from senior Matt Cook would be a big help. The three-point specialist, who led the team in scoring last year, is working his way back slowly from pre-season knee surgery.

"It's not fair to Matt to expect too much out of him yet," said Warrior coach Bill Ohlendorf after the Centria Holiday Tournament. "He's really only had a few hours of practice with us so far. The other kids have been going for two to three almost every night for a month and a half."

It's a light month for the Warriors, who have back-to-back games only on the final weekend of January. They will be looking to break a 23-game SWC losing streak on Friday.

The Trojans (4-2) face two extremes this weekend. Madison hosts winless Cahokia (0-9) on Friday at 6 p.m., then travels to East St. Louis for an 8 p.m. game Saturday against the Flyers (10-2), perhaps the premier team in the area.

The Comanches lost two games at the Centria Tournament, while the Flyers took three place there. East Side was humbled 74-48 by Chicago Thornton in the semifinals, but came back to maul Benton one of the better teams from the south — 82-52 for third place. Assumption transfers Ian Stanback and Ronald Scott led the Flyers.

Venice plays at Metro East Lutheran (3-6) on Saturday at 7:45 p.m. in a game rescheduled from Dec. 15.

Red Devils beat Sumner, 79-53

VENICE — Four Venice players scored in double figures as the Red Devils improved to 10-2 with a 79-53 home victory over Sumner on Wednesday.

Erwin Claggett led the way with 16 points. Doug Johnson had 14, John White had 13 and Leo Glasper had 11 for Venice, ranked 16th in the Associated Press' first Illinois Class A poll. Reno Mosby chipped in with seven assists and Charles Miller led the way with 12 rebounds.

Ben Gude led Sumner with 22 points.

from Dec. 15. That game was cancelled due to snow and cold weather.

The Lady Warriors (10-2) swing back into action at home tonight against Belleville Althoff (2-11). Granite City beat the Crusaders 71-40 in the first round of the Massacouta Holiday Tournament. Jennifer Cavness continues to lead the metro east in scoring with a 23.5 average.

Madison's Wilson honored by Aurora

Wendell Wilson of Madison won the Spartan "Gut" Award for the Aurora (I.L.I.) University football team in 1989.

Wilson, a 1986 graduate of Madison High School, suffered a season-ending knee injury in 1988. But the 6-0, 210-pound junior had 32 tackles — including six for loss of yardage — in 1989. He also had two sacks. Wilson shared the award with junior tailback Ron Griffin.

Dupo's Derek Tieman was named Offensive Rookie of the Year after running for 249 yards (5.3 per carry) and two touchdowns.

The Spartans finished at 9-1, a new school record for wins.

The Warrior wrestlers (5-4 in dual meets, 1-1 in the SWC) start a busy January with a toughie. Granite City travels to Belleville East on Friday to take on the Lancers, who finished second at the Holiday Tournament with 212½ points, just missing first place as McCluer North had 215.

East had 11 wrestlers advance to the championship round at Granite City and won titles at 132 (Joe Wier) and 189 (Jason Myers). The Warriors' top winner is senior 189-pounder Larry Hahne (14-3 with 10 pins).

The Warrior hockey team is 5-6-1 in the Mid-States Club Hockey Association after a 4-1 win over McCluer North on Friday. They are 5-1 in North Division play. Granite City plays CBC on Friday at the Althoff rink (7:30 p.m.), face McCluer North on Saturday at North County (9:15 p.m.), then host Francis Howell at the Wilson Park rink Monday (6:45 p.m.).

Hollywood's remakes make good leftovers

To complement holiday leftovers, Hollywood provides us with a bill of fare featuring remakes of films from years past.

In the case of Miles Forman's "Valmont," yesterday is no further back than last year, with director Stephen Frears' "Dangerous Liaisons" (1988, MCA, $89.95). Forman's movie is technically a remake, since it went into production at the same time as Frears. Both men were inspired by the London and Broadway productions of the play, which is a story about a French aristocrat's scheming and seduction in France just before the revolution.

Christopher Hampton, the playwright of "Les Liaisons Dangereuses," wrote and won an Oscar for the screenplay of "Dangerous Liaisons." Forman also went to the directors and costume designers who recreated the 18th-century setting.

Forman picked up the actresses (Annette Bening and Meg Tilly), while Frears gave more established stars (Michelle Pfeiffer and John Malkovich) the chance and Michelle Pfeiffer, both won nominees for their performance. Frears' greatest risk was hiring John Malkovich to portray the story's notorious seducer. Although last the more conventionally handsome Colin Firth in that part. In general, Forman is more sympathetic to the character of Valmont, who takes a perverse pleasure in the atrocities they inflict on each other.

Frears' Olivier and Sean Penn are also envying on screen as escaped convicts posing as priests in "We're No Angels" (1989, MCA, $89.95). Also, Olivier's depiction of medieval life is spotless and picture-book pretty. Branagh paints a murkier portrait of war and politics, emphasizing the tragic waste of life. It may be more rewarding to watch Olivier's version first to appreciate what Branagh has done with the same material.

remake with a screenplay by David Mamet, the cops are in a small town in Maine, hoping to cross over into Canada. You may have more fun with the Bogart version, which is less preachy about human values and has a strong supporting cast. Basil Rathbone, Joan Bennett and Leo G. Carroll.

One of the best films of the year is Kenneth Branagh's new version of Shakespeare's "Henry V." Nearly every reviewer has mentioned the 28-year-old British actor-director's nerve in remaking Laurence Olivier's greatest screen triumph, "Henry V" (1945, Paramount, $19.95).

Branagh's approach is far darker than Olivier's, who made his epic stirring in order to rally the spirits of the English, who were weary from World War II. Winston Churchill asked Olivier to delete the scene where Henry hangs one of his countrymen for stealing. Branagh includes it. Also, Olivier's depiction of medieval life is spotless and picture-book pretty. Branagh paints a murkier portrait of war and politics, emphasizing the tragic waste of life. It may be more rewarding to watch Olivier's version first to appreciate what Branagh has done with the same material.

Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" always survives as an inspiring fable, no matter how many times it is told on the screen. There is MGM's glossy package in the old Hollywood tradition starring character actor Reginald Owen as Scrooge (1988, MGM/UA, $24.95). A later British version (1951, United Entertainment Inc., $19.95) stars the hilarious Alastair Sim as the miser. Albert Finney played the part in the handsome musical remake "Scrooge" (1970, CBS/Fox, $19.98), and most recently, Bill Murray essayed the role, transforming Scrooge into a heartless American television executive in the comedy "Scrooged" (1988, Paramount, $29.98).

Those tiring of winter tales may appreciate Ingmar Bergman's "Smiles of a Summer Night" (1955, Embassy Home Entertainment, $29.98) and its two spinoffs. Don't expect the usual dour drama from Bergman; this is a delightful comedy about the folly of lovers, set in a fanciful chateau. The American remake, "A Little Night Music" (1977, Embassy, $9.98), boasts a lovely Stephen Sondheim score, including "Send in the Clowns" warbled by a cast of beauties.
